

The NAF Report - Commentary

Choose Month
November 2021

The NAF Report is a monthly summary of the NAF registered tournaments and games. For an interactive version and other analysis visit <https://public.tableau.com/profile/mike.sann0638.davies#!/>

The data has limitations - there is no easily accessible information on whether tournaments have tiers, what the TV is and what stars are used in particular rosters.

The commentary below changes depending on the month, starting from October 2021. The win ratio used in the data is $(Wins + 0.5 \times Draws) / Games$.

November saw Underworld continue to dominate the BB2020 scene with a 63% win rate and multiple tournament wins. The GW FAQ announced to adjust the cost of Morg and Hakflem, and reduce the efficacy of Swarming for Underworld, but these will not come in until a few tournaments in December and then fully in January, so it will be interesting to see the effect on the stats.

Dwarves were incredibly popular, with clear space in the number of games played between them and the next most popular of Undead and Lizards.

High Elves continue to do well in the limited games that they are playing, so will people start to play them more often, or are they just not cool enough?

From the other races, Chaos Dwarfs with (or without) their rat buddy continue to succeed, and Wood Elves had a good month in November. More interestingly, Imperial Nobility actually managed to win some games, and Tomb Kings also seem to be enjoying BB2020!

We would still ideally see the effect of tiering and stars on various tournaments, but this is where the quality of the stats let us down a little, so we are where we are.

At the bottom, Halflings in November were back in their rightful place...

For tournaments, we saw an immense 75 gather for Bilbabowl in Spain, one of the big one-day tournaments that are in the BB calendar. The Stress Cup in France had its 9th event, playing 11 games in a weekend. Great to see a Mexico tournament in there too!

Finally, though this report is focused on tabletop BB2020, November also saw the first big Fumbbl BB2020 tournament, so there is an extra tab this month looking at the results from that event.

The NAF Report - Fumbl

The Good, The Bad, The Fair and The Ugly BB2020 Tournament on Fumbl

GBFU was the first big BB2020 tournament on Fumbl. It was 1100 TV with stars available and 3 tiers.

It looks from the below very much like a normal distribution, with Dark Elves being very popular and coming out with a 50% win ratio - some good and some bad! At the extremes we had Nurgle, Khorne and Slaan, only taken by a few coaches.
